City pill popping drives heroin use

NYC narcotics prosecutors cite 'alarming surge' in use of prescription painkillers ◆ Can lead to heroin addiction, a drug that's even cheaper to buy

New Yorkers are popping so many painkillers that prescriptions for oxycodone have doubled citywide since 2007 — leading some into harder drugs like heroin, which prosecutors say is actually cheaper to procure in New York than pills.

A new report released this month from the city's Office of the Special Narcotics Prosecutor details an "alarming surge" of prescription pill abuse.

One million oxycodone prescriptions were filled last year citywide. On Staten Island, a local hotbed for prescription drug abuse, enough prescriptions were filled in 2010 to supply so-called "oxy" to one in every four residents, prosecutors claim.

Thousands of New Yorkers are illegally buying and selling pills, according to the Aug. 10 report. Many hooked on Percocet or Vicodin find them so expensive that they turn to heroin instead, special narcotics prosecutor Bridget Brennan said in the report.

A heroin habit could be as low as $10 to $20 per day, according to Dr. Arnold Washton, director of Recovery Option, a Midtown-based drug treatment center. Pills on the black market, meanwhile, can be $5 to $10 each, Washton explains, and an addict might take 10 to 20 pills a day.

▶ Last January, NYPD officers pulled over a car at 21st Street and 10th Avenue and found a trove of more than 3,100 pills in the console, all bound to be sold on the black market.

All over the city

- In March, cops in the West Village saw a man handing off seven kilos of banana leaf-wrapped heroin to a drug trafficker.
- In November, officers broke up a heroin mill on West 43rd Street, just off Times Square.

Washton said he has watched businessmen turn to heroin when prescription pills no longer gave them the high they sought.

"Drugs like Vicodin, oxycodone, Percocet, they're extremely appealing," Washton said. "The drugs work very well and foster the illusion that one can go through life without anxiety and pain."

Illegal prescription pill operations cropped up all over the city last year — cops found 2,000 pills in a Chelsea woman's 19th Street apartment and a Staten Island ring selling pills out of an ice cream truck.

▶ Sylvester said he was chosen to represent the FDNY because of his "winning smile" and "body of work."

Brooklyn firefighter is cover boy

September just got a whole lot hotter. Canarsie native Philip Sylvester, 27, has been chosen to represent New York City in the national firefighter calendar, "Nation's Bravest: Firefighters Unite," released today.

Sylvester has battled blazes for three years at Engine No. 255 in Flatbush.

"September will always belong to New York City," said Sylvester, who hopes his appearance as "Mr. New York" will honor the victims of 9/11. Part of the calendar proceeds will go to the Wounded Warrior Project, a charity Sylvester chose.

"I get to save people's lives," he said of his day job. "It's the closest thing I could do to becoming a modern-day superhero."

All of the firefighters featured in the calendar will be at Greenhouse in SoHo tonight to celebrate the release of the steamy calendar. And yes ladies, Sylvester is still looking for his Mrs. New York.

Mr. Nickname

Posing for the calendar has its perks, Sylvester explains — except that his fellow firefighters have now taken to calling him "Mr. Baby's Got Backdraft."

▶ New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie and New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo attended a service at Ground Zero earlier this year after Osama bin Laden was killed.

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo and New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie are trying to elbow their way into bigger roles in the city's 10-year anniversary commemoration of 9/11, an event traditionally controlled by Mayor Michael Bloomberg.

Cuomo is quietly trying to push for more control over his role in the ceremony, according to a report in the Wall Street Journal.

For the past decade, Bloomberg has commanded the entire event. He gives brief remarks at the opening and closing of the ceremony and asks the crowd to join in moments of silence.

Governors are relegated to reading a few lines of poetry.

Bloomberg said recently that the program for the ceremony has been finalized and that Cuomo is "going to read something, which we preselect."

But a spokesperson for the governor said Cuomo's role was still undecided, according to the Journal. It is possible the governor will even address the thousands expected to attend at Ground Zero. For the past decade, politicians have been barred from giving speeches in an attempt to keep the service apolitical.

Some rich lead the way, but will anyone follow?

Buffett, Schultz push ideas to fix US economy that run afoul of the 'taxes are evil' Republican battle cry

Warren Buffett and Howard Schultz want to change the conversation about how to fix the United States' economic woes. But their solutions — more taxes on the rich and a boycott on political donations — risk falling on deaf ears among fellow business leaders.

Few high-profile decision makers have publicly supported their pleas so far, and most in their target audiences decline to even discuss it, lest they get dragged into the debate.

That isn't the case outside the corporate elite.

More than 40,000 Twitter users shared billionaire investor Buffett's op-ed column in Monday's New York Times calling for the wealthy to shoulder a bigger tax burden.

CNBC's largely corporate audience backed Starbucks Chief Executive Schultz's call to fellow CEOs to stop sending political donations until Congress and the president come up with a long-term plan for a "fair, bipartisan" deal to curb U.S. debt, with 89 percent in favor in a poll.

▶ Buffett

But public outrage will not make their suggestions reality. That would require other tycoons and top executives to jump on board to tell the Republicans and the Democrats that they had also had enough of the rancor that brought the United States close to a debt default earlier this month and contributed to the loss of the nation's triple-A debt rating.

"Getting Washington to do something about this, getting the GOP [Republican Party] to move off their 'no new tax' position, no funding of our deficit problem through raising tax revenue, I don't see how that's going to happen," said Dal LaMagna, an entrepreneur and investor who has unsuccessfully run for national office.

LaMagna has a history of outspokenness, but few are joining him in debating this question.

Even if Buffett and Schultz fail to get more than a handful on board with their proposals, the very fact they made them may tend to help Democrats on the campaign trail for the presidential and congressional elections in November 2012. REUTERS

Cigarette makers sue the FDA

Four big cigarette makers sued the Food and Drug Administration, seeking to void as unconstitutional new graphic labels and advertising that warn consumers about the risks of smoking and induce them to quit. The lawsuit claims that the warnings required no later than Sept. 22, 2012 would force cigarette makers to "engage in anti-smoking advocacy" on the government's behalf. They said this violates their free speech rights under the First Amendment, according to a complaint filed with the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C. REUTERS

Perry not quitting on Fed attack

BEDFORD, N.H. Republican presidential candidate Rick Perry yesterday called for more transparency from the Federal Reserve to show that the central bank was not engaging in unspecified "improper" actions.

It was a fresh attack on the Fed from Perry, who is on an "announcement tour" after launching his bid for the White House on Saturday. On Monday, the Texas governor created a stir when he said he would consider it "treasonous" if Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke "prints more money between now and the election" in November 2012.

Under Bernanke, the central bank has embarked on one of the most extended periods of cheap money in U.S. history. REUTERS

Evidence of coverup at UK tabloid?

New evidence of hacking at Rupert Murdoch's News of the World points to a four-year coverup by the company and intensifies focus on Prime Minister David Cameron's judgment in hiring an ex-editor who may now face criminal prosecution.

A letter written in 2007 by ex-royal reporter Clive Goodman says former editor Andy Coulson banned talk in editorial meetings of phone-hacking but not the practice itself — which Goodman said was common.

If true, Goodman's allegations would mean that Coulson lied not only to U.K. parliament but also under oath as a witness in a 2010 criminal trial, when he repeatedly denied that there was a culture of phone-hacking at the tabloid.

It would also imply that many more senior figures at the News of the World knew about the illegal practice, casting doubt on repeated statements of ignorance by executives. REUTERS

Indians rally in protest against govt. corruption

Protests swelled across India yesterday in support of a self-styled Gandhian anti-corruption campaigner fasting to death in jail, with Prime Minister Manmohan Singh's struggling government at a loss over how to end the standoff.

Singh, 78, who is widely criticized as out of touch, dismissed the fast by Anna Hazare as "totally misconceived," sparking outrage as lawmakers cried "shame."

"It is a wake-up call for all of us unless we put our house in order," said Arun Jaitley, a leader of the opposition Hindu nationalist Bharatiya Janata Party.

15K

Spurred by messages on social networking sites, such as on Twitter and Facebook, at least 15,000 thronged to one protest site in central Delhi alone.

"The people of this country are becoming restless," continued Jaitley.

The squat and slight 74-year-old Hazare fasted as thousands of his followers gathered outside the jail, the latest development in a crisis that saw him arrested Tuesday. He then refused to leave jail after the government ordered his release.

Hazare, who has struck a nerve with millions of Indians by demanding tougher laws against rampant corruption, had insisted he wants the right to return to a city park where he had originally planned to publicly fast, before he leaves jail.

The arrest and sudden about-turn to release him appeared to confirm a widespread feeling that Singh's government is too riddled with scandal to govern Asia's third-largest economy. REUTERS

In Zawiyah, which controls the western highway linking Tripoli to Tunisia, Gaddafi forces were holding the refinery and harassing rebels in the city with shelling and sniper fire. REUTERS

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

The feed ...

Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Kelly Osbourne is getting smarter about security, Emma Bunton is experiencing technical difficulties, Dax Shepard is questioning people's behavior, and Albert Brooks is watching his figure.

note to self never leave lap top with twitter page open in a room full of friends!

▶ @emmabunton
yesterday my twitter was down, my internet is still not working and my boiler is broke!!! Not a great couple of days!

▶ @daxshepard1
Once a week I hear someone answer their phone with, "I can't talk right now." Do they think phone will explode if not answered?

▶ @AlbertBrooks
You know you've gained a few pounds if your robe is tight.

Brooks

But all he wears is Ed Hardy?

Yesterday, the media was in a giant tizzy after clothing manufacturer for wealthy suburbanites everywhere, Abercrombie and Fitch, released a statement asking Mike Sorrentino (a.k.a The Situation of "Jersey Shore" fame) to not wear their clothes in return for a large sum of money.

"We believe this association is contrary to the aspirational nature of our brand, and may be distressing to many of our fans," the company said in the release. The statement added that the retailer is "deeply concerned that Mr. Sorrentino's association with our brand could cause significant damage to our image."

Here's the thing: I looked at hundreds of photos taken of The Situation by Getty Images (who says that journalism degree isn't working out for me?) and not once was he snapped wearing Abercrombie and Fitch. Ninety percent of his wardrobe seems to be Ed Hardy (naturally), or he chooses to wear no shirt at all.

▶ Sweats and no shirt: The usual outfit of The Situation.

The Abercrombie execs are reportedly referring to the fact that he wore a pair of lime-green A&F track pants during last week's episode. But it was such a brief incident; it's hard to think they could be so upset. Besides, A&F created and sold a T-shirt with the words "The Fitchuation" last year. It sounds like something is rotten in overpriced khaki city.

"It's a clever PR stunt and we'd love to work with them on other ways they can leverage 'Jersey Shore' to reach the largest youth audience on television," a spokesperson for "Jersey Shore" network MTV told The Wall Street Journal.

The phrase "aspirational nature of our brand" should have tipped everyone off. What is the aspirational nature of A&F other than becoming a frat boy who lives for raging keggers?

PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Gerard Depardieu peed off

French star Gerard Depardieu made quite a stink on a CityJet flight from Paris to Dublin recently. While the plane was delayed on the tarmac, Depardieu asked to use the restroom. After he was refused, the actor reportedly relieved himself in the aisle. "I will only confirm that he, in effect, urinated in the plane," a spokeswoman for the airline says. After the incident, the plane had to return to the gate and was delayed for two more hours for cleaning. What's impressive about this story isn't that he whizzed on the carpet like a not-housebroken wolf-child, but that we all got an update on how Depardieu looks in 2011. Sacre blob!

Talking points

Handler has a celebrity twin

Actress Elizabeth Banks gets mistaken for comedian Chelsea Handler pretty often — and she sometimes doesn't correct people. "A guy walked up to me and said, 'I just love your books. I mean, 'My Horizontal Life.' … I was like, 'Oh, he thinks he's meeting Chelsea Handler.' I couldn't ruin it for him!" the actress said during a visit to Handler's talk show. "I was like, 'It's nice to meet you.' I was just hanging out, being Chelsea, drinking my vodka and having a good time. He couldn't have been happier."

No new judges for 'Idol'

Jennifer Lopez, Steven Tyler and Randy Jackson aren't going anywhere.

The trio of judges will continue to banter, critique and praise another round of wannabe superstars in the 11th season of "American Idol." "Having both Jennifer and Steven return to 'Idol' in 2012 alongside Randy is such a positive reflection on what was a wonderful and hugely successful season last year, and everyone is delighted," said Simon Fuller, "American Idol" creator and executive producer, in a statement. Lopez and Tyler both made their debut at the "Idol" judges table last year; Jackson has been doling out advice on the show since its inception. Host Ryan Seacrest will also be back on the show, set to return Jan. 22.

Sitting atop, the Throne

If Kanye West and Jay-Z break sales records with their collaborative effort, it's mostly because the pair are also breaking all the rules ◗ 'Watch the Throne' is already No. 1 in 23 countries

ETHAN MILLER/GETTY IMAGES

The numbers are in. No. 1 in 23 countries on iTunes, the Jay-Z and Kanye West (known collectively as the Throne) collaborative album "Watch the Throne" has been a commercial smash. But financial windfalls notwithstanding, why would two of hip-hop's biggest stars even bother with the project in the first place, especially when each rapper is at the top of his game?

The answer might be in the project's first video, "Otis." Smiling as they trade verses and ride in a Maybach that gets the "Mad Max" treatment, they look like they are having fun with no rules.

"That's the beauty in it. They didn't need to do it for money. Not worried about radio singles or marketing campaigns, they just went in and produced what they thought was a dope album," explains Geespin, assistant program director of New York's Power 105 FM.

The presentation of the album was unprecedented. It was for sale exclusively through iTunes, while streaming online for free from Aug. 8-11. Then it hit all digital and physical retailers on Aug. 12. This allowed the Throne to dodge that most treacherous of artistic enemies in this digital age, the Internet leak.

The set also broke the U.S. iTunes Store's one-week sales record last week when it sold nearly 290,000 downloads.

With the physical sales added to the digital, "Watch the Throne" was a lock for the top spot when Billboard updated its charts yesterday.

In the music business, success usually breeds imitation. Are we on the brink of seeing more special projects like this? Will there be an heir to the Throne, so to speak? Geespin thinks so.

"I wish that more artists in the position would be more conceptual instead of thinking radio spins," he says. "It's good for the culture."

GEESPIN, ASSISTANT PROGRAM DIRECTOR OF NEW YORK'S POWER 105 FM TALKING ABOUT "WATCH THE THRONE"

The project

A nonradio 'radio' single

Everything about this project has been different. From the supergroup approach to the innovative retail rollout and going to digital first, "Watch the Throne" has not been the norm.

Nowhere do we see that more than in the Otis Redding-sampling, "Otis," which is shaping up to be an unlikely radio hit.

"That record is testing well for us," says Geespin. "Tests are usually based on a strong hook but there is no hook on that record. That's the refreshing thing about this project. They have gone against the grain in every circumstance, and it's worked."

A bigger War on Drugs?

Singer contemplates what life would be like if he were in a band as big as U2 Incidentally, U2 made one of his favorite albums of all time

It might come as a surprise to most people who have heard The War on Drugs' ambient space rock, but main man Adam Granduciel was — or maybe still is — a big U2 fan.

"'The Joshua Tree' is probably one of my favorite albums of all time," says the 32-year-old Philadelphia-based artist.

He had spent the previous day running around New York City doing promo for WOD's album "Slave Ambient," which was to be released a week later. Rave reviews and more media attention mean he's becoming very busy and "slightly overwhelmed," he confesses. Could he imagine being as big as U2?

"It's funny, because we were just talking about what it would be like to be big enough to have a bus, like what we'd have in the bus," he says. "We thought we'd have a basketball hoop, like a Nerf basketball."

What would they have in the fridge, we wonder?

"Well, I really like to cook, so I'd have eggs and maybe make breakfast for us all. We'd have French-press coffee. I'd have a Crock-Pot for touring in winter."

Hardly the booze and excess of most rock 'n' roll fantasies.

"We've done the booze tours, and I like to think I'd still get a little crazy on the tour bus," he concludes.

SECRETLY CANADIAN

Once a Violator ...

With The War on Drugs so busy with this much-buzzed about album, Granduciel will have little time to play in his pal Kurt Vile's band, the Violators.

"It's nice to go on tour with Kurt for three weeks and rock out and then come home and play music that has more ... space. I just missed his European tour, because we had a tour. We've played on each other's songs for so long."

Rose McGowan: 'I'm a fighter, what can I say?'

Why the 'Conan' star is a 'Scrappy Doo' in her action scenes At risk of injury, she'll still try to save a scene

NED EHRBAR
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

In "Conan the Barbarian," Rose McGowan ditches her usual glam look to portray Marique, a slithering, blade-wielding sorceress out to help her father (Stephen Lang) raise the dead and take over the world. The part called for hours in the makeup chair and plenty of swordplay — not that McGowan is complaining, mind you. Metro sat down with the always outspoken actress to chat about risking injury on set, the future of the "Red Sonja" remake and fighting above her weight class.

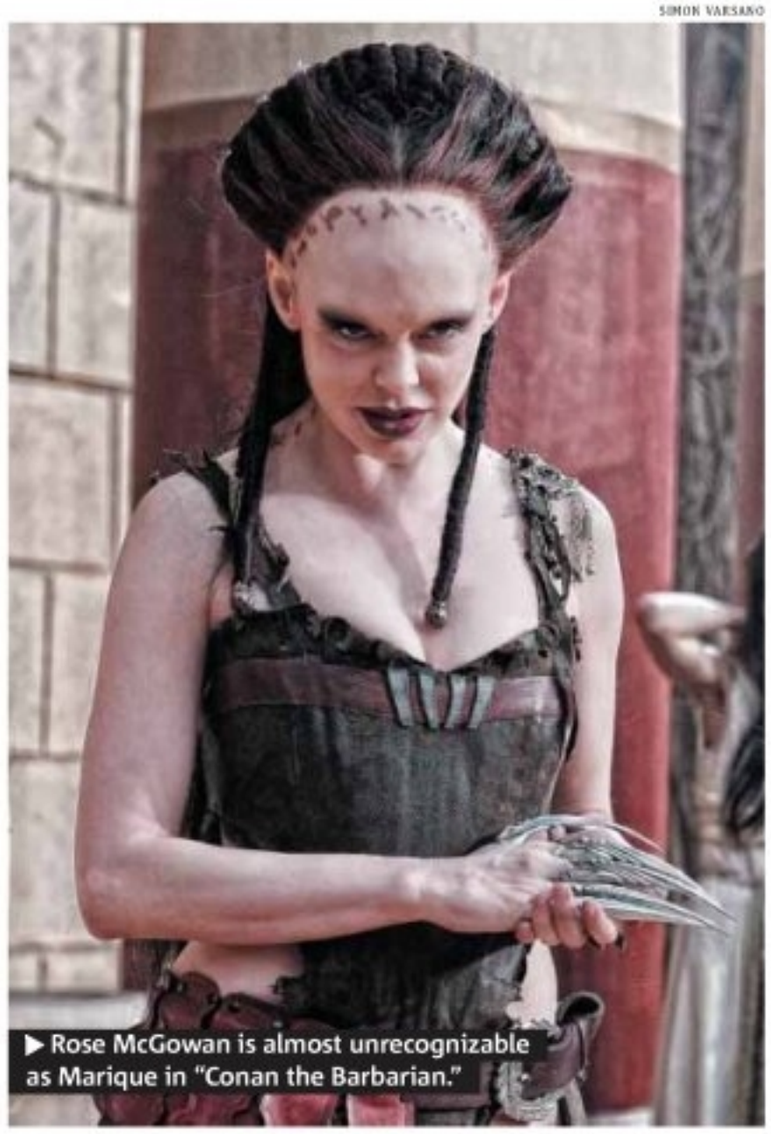
You got your start with "The Doom Generation" ...

So you've seen my breasts. Odd now, sitting across from me, right? It's occasionally what pops into my head when someone says, "I loved 'The Doom Generation.'" We're on unequal footing now.

In "Conan the Barbarian," you get to play with some pretty fun weapons.

That's fun, great fun. I think just as a girl I'm so consistently underestimated, especially because I weigh, like, 103 pounds. People treat you like you're this little doll. I'm like, my brain — which I think is why I'm always so injured — is not in line with what my body is like. So I'm like Scrappy Doo out there, fighting the big guys, which is why I always wind up getting hurt, because I have this unfortunately delicate frame.

SIMON VARSANO



▶ Rose McGowan is almost unrecognizable as Marique in "Conan the Barbarian."

Might I suggest you should do some dramas instead?

I just did one! Although actually I got the crap beaten out of me for about two weeks straight by my husband in the movie, now that I think about it. It was hard not going, "I'm going to kick your ass now," because I'm used to that instead of just taking it like a mouse.

Q&A

With you being in "Conan," does this mean you can't be in the "Red Sonja" remake?

I can't do that based on my injury. It's not worth it. It's not worth paralysis — being that I was paralyzed in my right arm from a stunt gone wrong. There's points where you're like, "OK, there are real-life situations and there are movie situations." There was a huge camera up on a crane — this was on "Death Proof" — and it was supposed to swing its arm, and out of the corner of my eye I saw it just falling, just swooping really fast. I should've just ducked out of the way, but I didn't want to ruin the shot, so I just turned my head to the side and just laughed. And it literally just whipped through my hair. It would've probably decapitated me.

So do the injuries mean you're looking for fewer genre roles?

I will always. I'm a fighter, what can I say? I love flying on wires and things being blown up around me. That's the fun part of what I do. "What did you do at work today?" "Well, I flew over a 30-foot wall with a giant mushroom cloud explosion behind me. Half my hair burned off, but it looked fantastic!"

Must-see

1 'Fright Night'

We'd put money on Colin Farrell showing up Robert Pattinson in the hunky vampire department. In "Fright Night," he plays the smoldering vamp Jerry, who lives next to a high school senior (Anton Yelchin) who vows to take him out. METRO

5 Reasons to go to the movies this weekend

2 'Conan the Barbarian' Comic-book movie season is winding down, but here's one last treat before we dive into self-serious Oscar-bait autumn: Jason Momoa plays the ancient hero out to avenge his slain father.

3 'One Day' Two friends, 20 years, one day. That's the simple set up of this adaptation of the modern classic written by David Nichols. Em (Anne Hathaway) and Dex (Jim Sturgess) meet at college and grow together and apart through the '90s and the aughts.

4 'Spy Kids: All the Time in the World in 4D' Here's a game: What do Jessica Alba, Jeremy Piven and Joel McHale have in common? This movie. Which one of these doesn't belong? Jeremy Piven. Because we don't like him.

5 '30 Minutes or Less' Jesse Eisenberg explores his less-geeky side as a stoner pizza delivery guy who's forced to rob a bank by trash-talking lowlifes played by Danny McBride and Nick Swardson.

Barechested Brazilian men in tutus

MATTHEW MURPHY

Cisne Negro means "black swan" in Portuguese, but don't go to the Joyce this week expecting the melodrama — or the pointe shoes — of last winter's hit movie. What you will find are three recent works.

"Flock," to a mash-up of Stravinsky scores, managed to sap the energy in the music while displaying the well-toned abs of the dancers. A dozen young men and women keep changing from tiny black briefs to black tutus to red briefs to red tutus. Choreographer Gigi Caciuleanu, responsible also for the costumes, puts them through acrobatic paces, but the piece remains scattered, too quiet and too badly lit to have real impact.

Dany Bittencourt's "ABACADA" promised more light, with a bright projection on the back wall and more bare skin, but what emerged from this fusion of choreography and improvisation resembled a romp on the beach, with slack design outclassed by Andre Mehmari's allusive music.

Monday evening's performance closed with the new "Calunga," Rui Moreira's effort to "establish a dialogue between the past and the present in order to build a future." The lovely dancers seemed to fuse Vegas routines with carnival energy — hot pink lighting — and a scene right out of Jerome Robbins' "The King and I"; they mobilized a glittery blue tarpaulin to symbolize the ocean and played around and in it. But the choreography was bland.

Sidewalk Cafe gets a needed makeover

The longtime New York fixture has been upgraded to feature a revamped menu, space, stage and bar Their live acts remain eclectic

The '80s staple Sidewalk Cafe is sporting a new look.

If you've been partying since the '80s, chances are you've got some significant wear and tear, which is why it's straight crazy that Corey Feldman looks so youthful and vibrant. It takes courage for an '80s child able to admit it needed a complete facelift. Drop by Sidewalk Cafe, give it a high five, down low, but not too slow.

Originally opened in 1985, the home of the city's longest-running open mic night recently overhauled itself and has returned as a three-part party barn, blowing out the stage room to accommodate better views, dropping turquoise banquettes in the dining area, and filling out the bar with a large distressed mirror and cagelike fixtures. With only two dishes left over from the original menu, new "homestyle" fare includes brown butter and sage croquettes, pulled pork ciabatta sandwiches topped with red cabbage and jicama slaw, and all-day breakfast including chorizo, queso fresco, and cilantro on top of baked eggs. Drinks have also been amped up, with a fresh beer list sporting drafts like Goose Island and Kelso, plus Sixpoint cans (Sweet Action, the Crisp); there's also a selection of spiked milkshakes for getting fat, er, cooling down, including a bitters-aided Bourbon Old Fashioned, and a mash of bourbon, bananas, PB and chocolate called the Monkey Business.

Live acts will remain a mixed bag of everything from "anti-folk" to stand-up comedians to Michigan's Drunken Barn Dance, which Corey Feldman can apparently do a million times over without showing the slightest sign of aging!

- The famed uptown establishment Le Cirque joins the pop-up restaurant craze
- Meet 'L.E.S. Cirque'
- How chef Craig Hopson is going to create a downtown feel

HOTEL ON RIVINGTON

When a restaurant goes pop!

▶ The downtown space for "The Feast: L.E.S. Cirque." To book your reservation, go to www.thepopuprestaurant.com.

For many New Yorkers, Le Cirque might just be a bit too "too" — too pricey, too elegant and maybe even too uptown. All this changes, however, this Tuesday when "The Feast: L.E.S. Cirque" opens for a brief run at the Hotel on Rivington.

"I don't want it to be a facsimile of Le Cirque," says Le Cirque executive chef Craig Hopson, who, along with Grey Goose brand ambassador Nick Mautone, is hosting the four-day pop-up. "It's going to be fresh. We're going downtown to do downtown food."

This "downtown" version will feature a food and cocktail menu created by Hopson and Mautone which will be centered around a key ingredient of the night, such as lobster, watermelon, sweet corn or heirloom tomatoes. Hopson says he's most excited about getting his hands on the watermelon. "I'm very impressed by the versatility of watermelon. It can be cooked — I've even marinated it in mustard to serve with pork belly. It gives nice freshness to hot food."

▶ Chef Craig Hopson

"I don't want it to be a facsimile of Le Cirque. We're going downtown to do downtown food."
CHEF CRAIG HOPSON

Although "The Feast: L.E.S. Cirque" is just a four-day event, Hopson is still a bit cautious about his new surroundings. "I've done guest chef stuff, but never a pop-up," he admits. "It's going to be challenging to go into a new environment and execute it how I want it. But it's fun to be doing something new."

Survival tips

Off-campus moving day

It's that time again — back to school season. If you've had your fair share of dorm life and you're finally living off-campus this year, you're one of about 8.3 million college students making the same choice, according to the U.S. National Center for Education Statistics.

However, along with RAs, swipe cards and shared bathrooms, those student-helpers wearing neon T-shirts and offering dollies, snacks and reserved parking are also a thing of the past. Yep, you're on your own for moving day this year. So here are a few survival tips to help you (and your parents) get through the most dreaded day of the year.

CASSANDRA GARRISON
cassandra.garrison@metro.us

▶ Moving day is never fun — but it doesn't have to be a nightmare, either.

1 Drink water. Move-in day is going to be hot. You'll no doubt be climbing stairs or stuffing yourself into crowded elevators (if you're lucky). And think of your poor dad, who thinks he can still move a dresser up three flights by himself. Do your whole family a favor and make sure everyone is hydrated.

2 Stretch properly. No, you're not about to do a triathlon, but you'd be surprised at the muscles you're using on move-in day — muscles you probably didn't know you even had. A limber mover is a happy mover, so just give yourself a minute to stretch and save yourself from the sore-muscle shuffle the next morning. Make sure your parents do this, too!

3 Consider furniture rental. No more bunk beds and wooden desks — you're on your own to furnish your off-campus housing. Splitting furniture costs with roommates can be tricky when the lease is up and you have to decide who takes what. Furniture rental could also cut down on moving expenses by eliminating the need for a moving truck. CORT, a furniture rental company, touts packages starting at $99 a month.

4 Take pictures. Assuming you inspected the place before signing the lease, you also need to take photos before filling it with your stuff. Welcome to the world of landlords! In a few weeks, you won't remember if that giant gash in the drywall was there before you moved in. This is why you need photos of the initial condition of the place. You don't want to get charged for damage you didn't cause and robbed of your security deposit down the road.

MORE INFO YOU'LL NEED FOR BACK-TO-SCHOOL AT EDUCATIONOPTION.COM

5 Be patient. There's a lot going on during move-in day. Traffic, heat, negotiating furniture arrangement with other roommates, possible dehydration — it's a jungle out there! Just remember you're all in this together. Be kind to your parents. They're there to help, and saying goodbye isn't always easy.

Back-to-campus packing list

From fun new accessories to dorm must-haves, what's making the grade — within your college budget

1 Before lengthy calls home to mom, plug this retro-style phone receiver into your cell. It blocks radiation by up to 96 percent, is Skype-friendly and is compatible with most mobile devices. $30, www.nativeunion.com

2 This messenger-style bag from Kipling is designed with busy students — and teachers — in mind, packing a ton of compartments for books, papers, pens and gadgets. $84, available at select Macy's and at www.kipling-usa.com

3 Protect your fancy new iPad with these covers featuring old-school classics. We won't tattle if you're reading TMZ behind them. $40-$50, www.outofprintclothing.com

4 The Livescribe Echo smartpen records everything you hear and write, and can then sync up to programs such as Google Docs. $99, available at Target, Amazon and Best Buy stores

By the numbers

$603.63

The average student will spend $603.63 on back-to-school gear this year, according to a report from the National Retail Federation. Of that, $365.48 will go toward electronics.

5 We don't want to spell it out for you, but dorm mattresses? They've lived a rich life before you. Therapedic's waterproof cotton mattress pads provide a buffer — and have an odor eliminator for worst-case scenarios. $40-$100 at Bed Bath & Beyond stores nationwide

6 Colorful bedding is a must when you're working with clunky, generic dorm furniture. Burlington Coat Factory has a ton of bedding kits to do the trick, but we love this pretty, calming teal set. $50-$80, www.burlingtoncoatfactory.com

Shopping for every student

There's more to it than No. 2 pencils and fresh notebooks. We checked in with Gifts.com "Back to School Guru" Laura Smith.

A smart shopping strategy would be to stick to the basics before school starts — like backpacks, lunch totes, sneakers and jeans — but hold off on getting supplies until school starts. You never know how many supplies your student will need until they start classes. By that time, all of those practical supplies will be on sale.

1: Her pick: Girls' Backpack, $13, www.childrensplace.com

▶ How about high schoolers — what's on their lists?
Teens have always been tech-hungry, and with a new school season ahead of them, they're going to want to show off their new gadgets and updated accessories. Along with flash drives, laptops and computer accessories, technology has become a new school supply category in itself.
2: Her pick: MP3 Alarm Clock Docking Station and Speakers, $60, www.crateandbarrel.com

▶ There's a ton to consider for dorm shopping. Where should you start?
Like any packing process, it's always important to make a list. That's why we created an easy, printable checklist for college-bound teens so they can easily check off everything they'll need for the upcoming school year.

Two choices, both lousy

RE: "THIS IS NOT A CAPITALISM": We only have a choice between Democrats and Republicans, and both usually don't have our best interests in mind. The reason there are only two parties is because it costs a ridiculous amount of money to run a campaign, and if someone doesn't have the support of either the Democratic or Republican party, they can't afford it. However, the Tea Party is not a third party at all, it is an extension of the Republican party.

MAX A. GUARINO, VIA E-MAIL

Perry the hero takes on Fed

My original disdain for Gov. Perry has been greatly tempered by his courageous assault of Ben Bernanke of the Federal Reserve. The only thing more sinister than the pharmaceutical companies pushing dangerous vaccines on our helpless youth is the Federal Reserve, which President Wilson created in a cloud of secrecy, and Goldman Sachs. If Perry is willing to risk his life to lock horns with Bernanke and the Federal Reserve, then we owe him serious consideration. Just remember: Every dollar the U.S. goes into debt makes Goldman Sachs and the Fed richer and our children poorer!

JOSEPH DUPONT, VIA E-MAIL

Campaigning on our taxes

Not content with bleeding taxpayers with his airborne fundraising, Barack Obama managed to saddle us with the cost of this week's campaign swing through Iowa in a government-owned bus. It costs $181,757 an hour to fly Air Force One. Add to that a cargo plane to carry the Marine One chopper, and taxpayers shell out more for these $35,000-a-plate fundraising trips than he adds to his 2012 coffers.

TOM SULLIVAN, UNION CITY

Check please, tax warriors

RE: "STOP CODDLING THE RICH": What fraud! Obama's oligarch club of billionaires who fund his campaign and in turn reap billions of our tax dollars through special, back-room deals and regulations are the ones pushing this charade. If they really wanted to pay more, all they have to do is — like Pat Buchannan said — cut a check for $5 billion or so and send it to the federal government. There's a postal address for this purpose in Hyattsville, Md. DAVID BAKER, KEW GARDENS

Expect to see Holmes in leg warmers and heels this fall

When Katie Holmes was in town last week promoting her latest — the horror film "Don't Be Afraid of the Dark," helmed by Guillermo Del Toro, which opens on Aug. 26 — we couldn't help asking the actress about Holmes and Yang, the clothing line she co-designs with Jeanne Yang.

What can we expect next from Holmes and Yang?
We have a fall collection that just arrived at Barneys. Our colors are orchid, black and cream. We're also at Harvey Nichols right now. We're working on a small resort capsule. We're developing a red suede jacket that I'm really excited about. It's a cool blazer — skinny arms, helpful to all women. We took an Asian-inspired fabric and we kind of re-created the background. We're also offering a couple [of] cool little slip dresses.

Holmes

The looks or trends for this fall?
I like the leg warmers in high heels. I'm really into green for fall. Also, I love a three-piece suit.

The top gaming apps out now

▶ "Gesundheit" brings booger appreciation to a whole new level.

'Gesundheit!'

Company: Konami
Cost: $1 Grade: ●●●●○
Puzzle games are a dime a dozen on the App Store. Surprisingly, however, there aren't too many puzzlers that revolve around boogers. Snot rockets are the name of the game here, and what a game it is. You play a pig with a cold who must cleverly place sinus discharge to save your kingdom from invading monsters. It sounds stupid but the level design here is genius.

Sure, summer may be a dead zone for console video games, but do not despair. There is a light that never goes out. The glistening, neon glow of the App Store is always open and ready to fill your iOS device up with gaming goodness. Here are reviews of a few recent iGems.

'Temple Run'

Company: Imangi Games
Cost: $1
Grade: ●●●●○

Sidescroller

LAWRENCE BONK
LAWRENCE.BONK@METRO.US

Just when you thought the "endless runner" genre had ran its course, along comes "Temple Run." This insanely addictive 3-D platformer has you running and running and running to avoid certain death from various Aztecan annoyances. There are tons of power-ups and achievements, which should keep you entertained for hours. This is twitch gaming at it's very finest.

'Tiny Tower'

Company: NimbleBit
Cost: Freemium
Grade: ●●●●○
Freemium games, which are initially free but cost money to acquire in-game stuff, are the scourge of the App Store. Most are soulless pieces of crap hellbent on manipulating your obsessive compulsive tendencies to empty your bank account. "Tiny Tower," thankfully, is a cut above. It's essentially the Sims set inside a bustling megatower of your creation. Giving your citizens housing, managing their jobs and building them places to eat and shop are the orders of the day. You can speed things up by spending real money, but it's never emphasized.

Hacker traces laptop thief using Facebook information

One London teenager accused of stealing a laptop during the recent London riots certainly didn't do his homework on who he was robbing.

Greg Martin, an IT security specialist and former FBI and NASA employee, came home to his West Kensington apartment last Wednesday to find that his place had been ransacked and his MacBook Pro was stolen.

Martin, who runs a blog called InfoSecurity 2.0, had previously installed an open source tracking software called Prey on his computer. The free software "lets you keep track of your phone or laptop at all times, and will help you find it if it ever gets lost or stolen," the product's website states.

Once the robber had finally logged on to the laptop, Martin gathered evidence against the thief.

After two hours of remotely watching the laptop thief surf the Internet, Martin was able to collect information on the man's name, school, address, IP address, Internet service provider, wireless access point and Facebook ID number.

The thief's Facebook information was the deciding piece of information for Martin — he sent the information on to the London Metro police.

After details about the thief — identified as Soheil Khalilfar, 18 — were released to the police, the man's apartment was raided and the laptop was returned to Martin.

One man's trash...

Jets take a chance on Bills' bust Maybin Is he just a replacement for Vernon Gholston on the bench? Or edge pass rusher the team needs?

Begin to type the name Aaron Maybin on Google and the search engine immediately recommends that your search may in fact be for "Aaron Maybin Bust."

Such is the life of Maybin, a former first-round pick of Buffalo who was unceremoniously waived by the Bills last week.

Jets head coach Rex Ryan confirmed on Wednesday following the morning walkthrough that his team was close to signing the defensive end who has registered just 23 tackles in his two-year NFL career.

"We will give him the opportunity to see what he can," Ryan said. "He has the ability to rush the passer."

He has the "ability" to rush the passer, as Ryan puts it, but Maybin's two years in the NFL have shown no proclivity toward actually being able to do it. Maybin's ability has failed to translate to actual sacks and pressure so far.

Maybin came into the league with promise. He was the No. 11 overall pick in the 2009 NFL draft and had been a finalist for the Bednarik Award, given to college football's top defensive player. But as a professional, he's been a huge disappointment.

Despite signing to play with the Jets in New York, a pressure cooker Antonio Cromartie called "the toughest media market in the country," expectations are low for Maybin. He doesn't come in as a highly coveted draft pick, just a down and out player on the low end of the salary totem pole.

"No one expects him to come in and start," Ryan said.

Adding Gholston: Part II?

If Aaron Maybin's story sounds as if it could have been written about a former highly touted Ohio State linebacker who played for the Jets, you're right.

The comparisons to Vernon Gholston, the Jets' first-round pick in 2008 who was cut this offseason, seem to be relevant. Gholston registered just 42 tackles during his three seasons with the Jets and he, like Maybin, has never had a sack.

"Don't really know anything about him," nose tackle Sione Pouha said about Maybin. "But let's see what he can do here. Maybe the move will be good for him; maybe this defense will help him."

Injury notes

The Jets came out of their first preseason game with some bad news — and good.

- Backup center Rob Turner was rolled up on and broke his leg. He's out 8-10 weeks.
- Running back Joe McKnight suffered a concussion and is out indefinitely.
- Center Nick Mangold will likely play against Cincinnati, Rex Ryan said.

In the news

Giants' Rolle bashes booster

Current Giants safety, and former University of Miami standout, Antrel Rolle had no kind words for the man Yahoo! Sports reported gave Rolle cash and a $7,500 watch.

Nevin Shapiro, who is now in jail for running a Ponzi scheme, implicated Rolle in the improper benefits he gave out. Rolle didn't outright deny it yesterday, but said "to me, right now, that guy is irrelevant."

Plaxico finally practices

It had already been two years, what was a couple more weeks for Plaxico Burress?

The Jets' shiny new wide receiver — just months out of prison — finally practiced yesterday with his new team.

Burress rolled his ankle working out before official practices even began and had sat out every session. He was given an MRI last Friday, which confirmed it was just a sprain. The Jets gave Burress the weekend off, including Monday's game in Houston, to rest and recuperate.

Burress looked good in practice, but head coach Rex Ryan said he would withhold any decision on whether he would be able to play this weekend against the Bengals until later in the week. METRO

In the blue corner, fighting out of ...

Mark Sanchez

Sanchez ran a 4.88 40-yard dash and had a 32.5 inch vert at the combine. He's not some stiff.

6-foot-2, 225 lbs
Sanchez is in elite, physical condition. We saw the GQ spread.

Decision: Win by TKO

Ryan, Sanchez play off infamous 'wanted to fight' comment Metro wondered, 'what if the two had tangled?' C Mangold has his QB's back

The message from Jets center Nick Mangold to Mark Sanchez on the quarterback's recent interview and photo shoot with GQ: Keep it on the DL.

Mangold, a quotable figure himself, did not fully wade into the issue stemming from Sanchez's comments in the current GQ magazine where the quarterback says he at one point wanted "to fight" head coach Rex Ryan over possibly being benched in the middle of last season. He did, however, poke fun at Sanchez's posing for the magazine. Mangold didn't fault Sanchez for the decision or for airing such private remarks publicly.

"You can't blame him for it," Mangold said. "I wouldn't do it; I wouldn't recommend him to do it."

JOE ROBBINS/GETTY IMAGES

▶ The coach and his quarterback in happier times.

On Wednesday, following the team's walkthrough session in the morning, Ryan said the Jets had a team meeting about Sanchez's remarks and "had a lot of fun with it." Ryan did not divulge any details other than it involved "a tale of the tape."

Handbags at 10 paces maybe, but there was no brevity or clouding of remarks from Ryan in defending his decision to consider benching Sanchez last year after some midseason struggles.

"We pulled Bart Scott one time when he was really struggling in coverage to put in a defensive back," Ryan said. "Do I expect to pull Mark? No."

The Jets largely dodged the issue, with Mangold only jokingly saying that "I'll take Mark because I would probably help him out."

The bigger issue wasn't Sanchez airing dirty laundry with GQ, but the sort of laundry he might be wearing.

"I thought the white pants were suspect," Mangold said. "I think sometimes Mark lets someone make his fashion choices too much for him."

Rex Ryan

Rex did play football for Southwest Oklahoma State. We don't imagine he retains that athleticism.

Supposedly he weighed 311 last year before losing 20 lbs. We're dubious.

Manufacturers scramble to keep up with demand for powerful new diet formula

Consumers flood phone lines looking for SimplePure HCG weight loss solution

(Canoga Park,Ca) - Ground breaking developments are shaking up the weight loss industry. HCG (Human Chorionic Gonadotropin) is a hormone produced by the human body that helps the body use fat more efficiently. According to renowned endocrinologist, Dr. Albert T.W. Simeons, HCG effectively sends signals to the brain to release fat stores creating rapid weight loss. For years, HCG was only available by injection making it less available to the general public. Now, with its new advanced liquid formula, SimplePure Nutrition has made it available in sublingual drops. Suppliers have been authorizing extra shifts for employees in order to fill the rising demand for SimplePure's proprietary formula.

Shipments are being rushed to suppliers in order to meet demand for new rapid weight loss formula.

- Rapid weight loss of up to 2lbs per day!
- No injections or pills to take
- Targets fat loss in problem areas

The makers of SimplePure HCG have set up a toll free national hotline for dieters in immediate need. For a limited time, they are giving away a free bottle so consumers can experience the rapid weight loss themselves before purchasing. The offer is only good while supplies last so the manufacturer suggests calling the hotline immediately to secure the free supply.

How to get SimplePure HCG for FREE

Operators have been dispatched to multiple call centers to handle the growing number of calls. To secure your free supply, call the 24 hour toll free hotline as soon as possible because inventory is limited.

A-Rod back in the lineup

Life without Alex Rodriguez ends this weekend in Minnesota.

The instant Rodriguez returns, he will be joining a lineup that has been hitting at a high level during his monthlong recovery from knee surgery.

When Rodriguez was placed on the DL on July 10, the Yankees had a .258 team batting average. Through Tuesday, they are hitting .292, have scored 193 runs and hit 35 home runs, while stealing 39-of-45 bases.

The Yankees have won 21 of their last 32 games despite losing their cleanup hitter. Rodriguez will return on pace for 18 home runs and 70 RBI, though he was playing with a sore knee.

"It makes our lineup so much deeper," Mark Teixeira said Sunday. "It makes our bench deeper. It just gives us more options late in games, or maybe if we need to rest a guy here or there."

During life without A-Rod, every Yankee regular increased his batting average.

"A lot of guys have stepped up and swung the bats extremely well, but adding Al back, he can help out any team," Derek Jeter said. LARRY FLEISHER

18

Rodriguez is on pace for just 18 home runs this season. He is hitting one every 23.5 AB, the worst ratio of his career since he was a 21-year-old in Seattle.
